

Be rewarded for reducing your energy usage this summer

ERM Power's RERT (Reliability and Emergency Reserve Trader) Demand Response program is an opportunity for you to earn additional revenue and contribute to a secure and reliable energy market for Victoria.

What is the RERT Demand Response opportunity?

ERM Power is working with AEMO (Australian Energy Market Operator) this summer to encourage Victorian businesses to reduce their electricity usage when requested. Your organisation will be on call and paid to turn off equipment, or switch to on-site generators for a period of time during these 'events'. By participating, you will not only receive financial payments but will help to ensure the energy market remains in balance.

Can your business participate?

The RERT Demand Response program is available for Victorian businesses who:

- Have the ability to reduce electricity usage when requested between 1 November 2020 and 31 March 2021
- Can reliably switch to on-site generators or curtail load for a minimum of 3 hours between 7am and 10pm business days (not weekends and public holidays) between the dates and times specified above.

What are the benefits?

- Generate revenue by reducing electricity usage when requested
- Ease of participation – for ERM Power customers, RERT Demand Response can be provided as an additional service under your retail electricity agreement
- Payments can be made to an authorised account, or applied as credits on your monthly invoice (ERM Power customers only)
- Support the community by helping to keep the energy market in balance.

ERM Power offers two flexible payment options to participate in the RERT Demand Response program:

- (1) Capacity payments – receive a fixed payment for providing Demand Response capacity; or
- (2) Spot price share - receive a share of the Demand Response value per event.

The ERM Power difference
